Approach of Thanksgiving Has Repressive Effect on the Market.

NEW YORK, November 27.—The stock market gave substantial evidence of strength again today, the preference of buyers turning more to the high-priced, dividend-paying stocks.

The approach of Thanksgiving holiday, to be closely followed by the December 1st payments, had some repressive effect on the market.

Some money is being withdrawn from this market for Canada, as well as for San Francisco. The deposit for the latter purpose are affecting the showing of subsidiary operations, which have taken $1,000,000 from the banks since the last bank statement.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $1,412,000. United States 2 1/2 coupon, 10 1/2 and 10 3/4, 10 1/2, declined 1/8.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE: Close—Prime mercantile paper, 6 1/2-7 per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in London, 10 1/2-10 3/4.

LOCAL MARKETS

GREATER DEMAND FOR THINGS TO EAT. LARGE BREAKS OF LOOSE LEAF TOBACCO. All the warehouses were crowded with tobacco yesterday and the auctioneers had to do some lively work to get through with the market.

Prices were well maintained, and the farmers who sold and left for home did so with smiling faces, having received very satisfactory prices for the dark leaf tobacco.

The indications are that the breaks will not be quite so sharp to-day. The first sale will be at Shermans, second, at Conshawks, third, at Shockey, and fourth, at Stonewall.

Prices were also in demand, and the supply was more than sufficient to meet the demand.

It is the same may be said of vegetables, especially celery and cranberries, to go with the Thanksgiving trade.

The market was well supplied with Thanksgiving turkeys and all other kinds of fowls, and they sold readily and for good prices.

Fruits were also in demand, and the supply was more than sufficient to meet the demand.
